HOW TO GET TO THE TU BERLIN

... BY PUBLIC TRANSPORT
Berlin has multiple means of public transport, which might be confusing for first-time visitors. Generally, four means of transport are relevant to know:

- U-Bahn: The Berlin U-Bahn is an equivalent to the Paris Metro or the London Underground. As the name implies it mostly travels underground. Stations and trains can be identified by a large blue U.

- S-Bahn: The Berlin S-Bahn is a complementary means of transport. It is not the subway even though the S might imply this. Stations and trains can be identified by a large white S in a green circle.

- Tram: In the eastern part of Berlin a third means of transport is prevalent. The tram is pretty much similar to the S-Bahn. Stations and trains can be identified by the white Tram in a red square.

- Bus: Berlin has a large Bus System. Busses are either Express Busses marked with an X (like the X9) or Metro Busses marked with an M (like the M45).

For advance planning you may use the Journey Planner of BVG (www.fahrinfo-berlin.de/FahrinfoFahrplanen?id=0.1&). There you may also find an interactive network map (www.fahrinfo-berlin.de/Liniennetz/index?language=en)

STOP NEAR THE MAIN CAMPUS
- U-Bahn: Ernst-Reuter-Platz, Line U2
- U-Bahn: Zoologischer Garten, Line U2
- Bus: Ernst-Reuter-Platz, Lines M45, 245 and X9
- Bus: Steinplatz, Lines M45 and 245
- S-Bahn: Zoologischer Garten, Lines S5, S7, S75, S9
- S-Bahn: Tiergarten, Lines S5, S7, S75

... BY CAR
The traffic situation by car varies a lot in Berlin. If you can you should try to get to the Stadtautobahn (A100) ... except in cases of traffic jam ... which happens a lot.

COMING FROM THE NORTH - HAMBURG/ROSTOCK (A24):
At the motorway junction Oranienburg take the A111 to Berlin Zentrum, and at the motorway junction Charlottenburg turn onto the A 100. Leave at the Kaiserdamm exit, and turn left at the end of the slip road to turn onto the Kaiserdamm boulevard (later Bismarckstrasse). Continue over the traffic island into Strasse des 17 Juni, and the Main Building of the TU Berlin is on your right after 100 yards.

FROM HANNOVER (A2) AND LEIPZIG, NUREMBERG:
Take the motorway A10 (Berlin Ring) to the Drewitz motorway junction, then the AVUS (A 115) to Berlin-Zentrum. At the Funkturm follow the signs to Wedding, but then take the first exit to Kaiserdamm. Turn left at the end of the slip road to turn onto the Kaiserdamm boulevard (later Bismarckstrasse). Continue over the traffic island into Strasse des 17 Juni, and the Main Building of the TU Berlin is on your right after 100 yards.

... BY TRAIN
At Berlin Central station take a regional train (RE1, RE2, RE7, RB10, RB14) or S-Bahn (S5, S7, S75, S9) to Zoologischer Garten. The main campus is a 10-15 minute walk from Zoologischer Garten railway station. You can also take a Bus (M45, 245 oder X9) or the U-Bahn (Line 2) to Ernst Reuter Platz.

... BY PLANE
Berlin has (for the time being) two active airports. Schönefeld which is located in the south-eastern part of Berlin and tegel which is in the north-western part of Berlin.

VIA TEGEL:
The airport is closer to the main campus. Take the airport shuttle bus (X9) to Ernst-Reuter Platz (15 minutes) or take a taxi (10 minutes).

VIA SCHÖNEFELD:
From Schönefeld it’s a little harder to reach the TU.
- A Taxi is probably the best way for travellers with a low stress tolerance level.
- Take the 171 bus to S-Bahnhof Schönefeld, then take a regional train (RE7, destination Dessau) or S-Bahn (Line 9, destination Westkreuz) to Zoologischer Garten. From there you can walk down Hardenbergrstrasse (10-15 minutes), take a bus (M45, 245, or X9), or take the U-Bahn (Line 2, destination Ruhleben) one station to Ernst Reuter Platz.
- Take the 171 bus from underground station Rudow. From there take the Line U7 (destination Rathaus Spandau) to Bismarckstrasse, then change onto the Line U2 (destination Pankow) and travel two stops to Ernst Reuter Platz.

The options including public transport will take about an hour.
